10 Reasons Why Higher Education Institutions Select Dell Boomi

When you select the Boomi integration platform as a service (iPaaS,) you will be working with the industry's pioneer and leader for helping higher education institutions connect their applications and data.
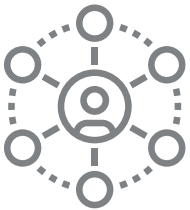

Boomi helps more than 150 schools and universities including Baylor, Cornell and University of Oklahoma.

Boomi can dramatically improve the way you develop and manage all the integrations inside your higher education organization. Here are 10 reasons why institutions like yours rely on Boomi.

1. Single, Unified Platform for Higher Education Integration

Boomi offers superior development and management efficiencies (what we call "economies of skill") with our unified platform. Our single environment supports all core higher education connectivity, EDI and API management tasks, along with comprehensive data quality management for ensuring consistent, dependable information for your student and administrative systems.

2. Breadth of Connectivity

With quality-assured connectors to more than 200 applications and more than 1,000 endpoints, Boomi lets you quickly and easily connect to virtually any endpoint application, whether on-premise, in the cloud or any combination. Boomi supports integrations with the leading campus management systems and can ensure the flow of data among your critical applications.

3. The Industry's Fastest Integration Environment

Boomi provides the industry's most extensive collection of tools to speed higher education integration projects and streamline implementations, including process libraries, prebuilt connectors, and crowd-sourced guidance for data mapping with Boomi Suggest.

4. The Industry's Easiest to Use Development Platform

Boomi pioneered the low-code revolution with its drag-and-drop interface for streamlining how integrations are built. In many cases, our tools, including our integration packs, completely eliminate the need for coding.
